Another "Recce Story Night" is to be hosted in Cape Town! This is an opportunity to meet ex Special Forces Operators, hear some great stories, laugh a little, buy some Recce Inc. branded items and mainly support the welfare initiatives of the South African Special Forces Association.

This Recce Story Night will focus on the mesmerising story of Operation Coolidge, planned to blow up the Quito Cuanavale bridge in Angola, the aim of which was to disrupt a major logistical supply line of the enemy at the time. The only way to reach this bridge was by swimming down a river infested with crocodiles. Which is just what a combined team of men from 4 and 5 Reconnaissance Regiment did!

Hear many of the men involved speak about the idea, the preparation, the suspense, the dramatic events on the day and the result of the operation. The senior commanding officer, the team leaders, the men that did the execution - most of them will be there! Tuffy Joubert: Ops Commander, Fred Wilke: Mission Commander and others ... From the proverbial horse's mouth!

A total of twelve Honoris Crux decorations for bravery were awarded to men involved in this operation!

After the dinner break we hear from Heinrich von Berg, retired SA Special Forces veteran and past Signals Officer at 5 Special Forces Regiment, who manned the Mission HQ, how this and other Special Forces operations were supported over great distances without modern technology like cell phones and GPS devices!
